

Step 2

Find the bag or heap of light squares.

Option A

Sew them together into 4-patch units.

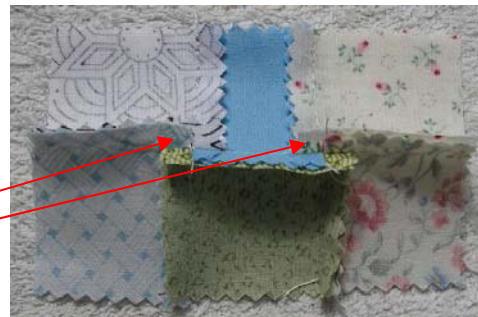

Make at least 18 light 4 patch units – the more you have the more design opportunities there will be. Resist the urge to match things up and keep your placement and arrangement of squares as random as you possibly can.

Option B

If you have lots and lots of scraps – especially small ones - then make 9-patch units rather than 4-patch

Press the seams towards the middle on some strips and away from the middle on others.

Then when you come join the strips together, if you undo a little stitching at each seam junction you can press the seams in opposite directions.

Put them away safe.
